

AP scores are in. And it's clear: the stakes are too high.

Millions of students take AP classes to earn college credits in high school. But one bad day, one bout of test anxiety can undo a year's worth of work. Why gamble with AP when you can secure your students' success with Outlier Dual Enrollment?

Students who pass Outlier courses earn real college credits from the University of Pittsburgh, a top 50 school. That's guaranteed credit not dependent on a single high-stakes exam or where they apply to college. And 54% of Outlier students pass. How does that compare to your students' AP scores?

The best part: you can implement Outlier courses at your school this Fall! No teacher training, curriculum development, or textbooks needed. These rigorous, turn-key courses are 100% online and asynchronous. So your students can learn from top-rated instructors at universities like Harvard and MIT—all on your school's schedule.

Prepare your students for college, not an exam. See how Outlier Dual Enrollment can work for your school today.
